

About:

Defence Network is a top-down tower defence game set in a post apocalyptic world where AI commanders, once entrusted with the protection of humanity, wage endless war against each other.

Through a flaw in the complex algorithms that governed them, each commander came to believe that it alone was best suited to safeguard their creators and that every other commander posed a dire threat to the survival of mankind.

Leading vast legions of drones and automated defences, these rogue warlords battle endlessly among the ruins of civilization. Only one commander can reign supreme and usher in a future where humanity will survive, and they're willing to destroy everything to make sure its them.

Players Role:

Step into the role of one of these rogue AI commanders. Eliminate the other commanders and prove that your vision is the only salvation for the human race.

Construct your formidable turrets and defend against waves of war machines sent against you by your rivals. With each wave your enemy will evolve, sending increasingly more deadly forces to overwhelm your defences.

Balance offence and defence. Send your own waves against the enemy to carry out tactical analysis. This valuable data becomes a resource that can be spent to unlock new technologies and upgrade your forces.

When the time is right, launch your final assault to overwhelm your rival's defences and destroy their AI core.
